Holcim is proud to join leaders, researchers and experts from across the construction industry, government sector and many more at the 2019 Lifecycle Assessment Conference in Sydney today and tomorrow.

“We are living in a time when the infrastructure and building industry needs to get serious about sustainable development and the benefits of a circular economy for the health of our environment,” says Glenn Simpkin, National Sales & Marketing Manager Concrete.

“At today’s conference we will be showcasing ViroDecs, which is Holcim’s brand of Environmental Product Declarations (EPDs) for our Readymix Concrete - a first for Australia. I encourage anyone attending the conference to visit our booth and learn about how we are supporting our customers to make informed environmental decisions by providing them with clearer life cycle assessment information.”
